CDO Spotlight

Vault Guides

Did you know that you can download many of the Vault Insider Guides for free? As a Cornell student, you can. You can access these free guides through the Vault Insider Guides link in our library database. (<http://www.cals.cornell.edu/current/career/>)

Students will need to complete a profile to establish their own personalized account to better organize and track the guides and information they are seeking. Happy Exploring!

Knowles Science Teaching Foundation

Do you have a passion for teaching high school science or math? Are you committed to becoming an outstanding professional teacher? A Teaching Fellowship from the Knowles Science Teaching Foundation can make all the difference.

Knowles Science Teaching Foundation 2010 Teaching Fellowships

Applications are now being accepted for one of the most generous and comprehensive teaching fellowships available for individuals committed to becoming professional high school science or mathematics teachers. KSTF Teaching Fellowships provide up to five years of financial and professional support to exceptional individuals as they begin their careers teaching in U.S. high schools.

Applicants should have:

- At least a bachelor's degree in science, engineering or mathematics
- Received their most recent content degree within the past five years (Individuals currently enrolled in a secondary math or science teaching credential program are eligible if they are within five years of their most recent content degree and have not completed their teaching credential before December 2009.)

Fellowships will be awarded in each of three disciplinary strands: biology, physical science, and mathematics. More information on the Fellowship benefits is available on the newly redesigned KSTF website, the online destination for the latest KSTF news and information. The new KSTF website includes a wealth of information on KSTF Fellows who teach across 31 states and are influencing nearly 14,000 students nationwide in the 2009-2010 academic year. The site also features interviews with KSTF's founder, fellows and staff; a state-of-the-art media center; and information on KSTF conferences and publications. For more information, contact teachers@kstf.org.
